Distinguished Service Cross
At Le-Bois-Plat-Chene, France, Oct. 10-29, 1918.
During the advance of the 3rd Battalion (115th Infantry) Corporal Renshaw was placed in charge of the battalion liaison group. He not only managed the group with skill, but repeatedly carried messages through shell and machine-gun fire. Although several times gassed during the succeeding operations, he continued his duties, showing utter disregard for his personal safety.
French Croix de Guerre (Gilt Star)
In command of a liaison group, he displayed great contempt for danger in frequently carrying messages under artillery and machine-gun fire. Although several times gassed, he remained at his post.

On or about November 5, 1918, during a barrage, the line of the 157th Brigade from the A.I.C. to the Cote de Roches failed. Private Rhein succeeded in repairing two breaks in this line close to the Brigade P.C. where the Brigade linemen were stationed. On the same afternoon the line to a dressing station went out four times between 5.00 P.M. and 10.00 P.M. Each time Private Rhein went out and repaired the line.

Private Rhodes was a gunner on an automatic rifle team on September 22, 1918, occupying an advanced position in outpost, and came under a heavy barrage from the enemy preparatory to a trench raid. By his marked coolness in the handling of his automatic rifle during the entire time, remaining in his position, he assisted greatly in preventing the trench raid being a success, repelling it at the outpost line.

Distinguished Service Cross
In Consenvoye Woods, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
Seeing a good position in advance of the lines, Corporal Rice took his automatic rifle and crawled through machine-gun fire to this place, where he established an automatic-rifle post and called on his squad to follow him. An enemy counterattack was eventually broken up at this point and the line was thereby advanced to a more advantageous position.
French Croix de Guerre (Gilt Star)
An admirably courageous soldier. Recognizing the tactical value of a position in advance of the lines, he crawled up to that point in spite of the intensity of the machine-gun fire, and established an automatic-rifle post which broke up an enemy counter attack.

During the operations of the central group of armies in Champagne in the month of October, 1918, he organized and directed the evacuation service of the American divisions with remarkable zeal and method. Exerting himself to the utmost he went each day over the ground to supervise the movement of the wounded, showing under all circumstances the most complete indifference to danger.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918.
He showed absolute disregard for the safety of his own life by advancing upon a machine gun which was holding up his platoon, and finally putting it out of action after being wounded himself.
French Croix de Guerre (Gilt Star)
Without thought of danger he unhesitatingly exposed himself in attacking a machine gun which retarded the advance of his platoon, and although wounded, succeeded in putting the gun out of commission.

164 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action
Bugler Ritchie was detailed as a runner for Lt. Ahlquist, then in command of the Company, on Oct. 10th, during the advance of the Company from Chehery to Fleeville and later to Sommerance, France. Bugler Ritchie by his conscientious attention to orders and his constant devotion to his duty was of the greatest assistance to his commander in the difficult period of the advances above mentioned and stuck to his work, although quite ill, until he collapsed and had to be evacuated on account of exhaustion.

Private Roberts, armed with an automatic rifle, crawled through a wire entanglement and disabled one machine-gun with a hand grenade and forced the crew of a second gun to surrender. His action enabled his company to pass through the entanglement without serious loss.
Navy Cross
For extraordinary heroism in action south of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. Private Roberts, armed with an automatic rifle, crawled through a wire entanglement and disabled one machine-gun with a hand grenade and forced the crew of a second gun to surrender. His action enabled his company to pass through the entanglement without serious loss.

9 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action
These men are recommended for bravery and excellent work in the Bois-de-Bon-Vaux, St. Mihiel Offensive, September 16, 1918, to September 17, 1918. Although the assaulting battalion advanced 3 kilometers thru dense woods these men by their exceptional bravery and devotion to duty built and maintained lines of communications and at all times throughout the duration of 17 hours of severe shelling, they constantly repaired the same.

Navy Cross
For extraordinary heroism on the occasion of the collision of the U.S.S. Shaw with H.M.S. Aquitania (October 9, 1918), when the Shaw was cut in two and set on fire. This man, with others, set a splendid example of efficiency, coolness and indifference to danger, especially in taking part in throwing overboard the ready ammunition piled on the deck of the Shaw within five feet of a blazing oil-tank.

79 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action

This soldier was severely gassed on November 5th, 1918, but refused to leave his position on the firing line, and continued to participate in the action. On November 6th, due to his serious condition, he was ordered to the rear by his Company Commander. He went to the First Aid Station, and there convinced the Medical authorities that he was able to resume his position in the front line and voluntarily carried a quantity of rations back to the front line position, which they were in great need of. He was wounded on the way back to his company, by a machine gun bullet in the leg, but continued until he had reached the company position, and then returned to the dressing station for aid.

While on duty with Field Hospital 315, when it was shelled at Fayel Farm, near Montfaucon, on the afternoon of September 29th, 1918, he exhibited unhesitating devotion to duty. He dressed patients during the violent shelling and reassured the wounded; and assisted in the prompt evacuation of the hospitals, thus saving many lives.

British Military Cross
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on August 16th, 1917, during the attack on Langemarck when working at the Divisional Advance Dressing Station at Gallwitz Farm under heavy shell fire he dressed and evacuated wounded in the open. Was twice slightly wounded (Contusions-Back) by shrapnel fragments and worked on until utterly exhausted. This Medical Officer has shown a fine example of courage and devotion to duty under heavy shell fire.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Verdun, France, Oct. 10, 1918. In the advance on Rechene Hill he showed great courage and judgment in leading his platoon and wiping out several machine guns that were holding up the advance. He was killed while gallantly leading his platoon against the last of these.
29 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
Aug. 30-31, 1918. Displayed remarkable courage and skill in reconnaissance preliminary to a raid on the German trenches, when he had the high honor of being the first man of this division to enter the enemy trenches in an attack.

French Croix de Guerre (Palm)
An officer observer of the greatest valor. In the course of a combat on August 29, 1918, he showed the finest qualities of coolness, decision and courage. Attacked by a patrol of fifteen planes and seriously wounded at the beginning of the fight he nevertheless continued to fire on his adversaries forcing one of them to descend disabled.
French Croix de Guerre (Bronze Star)
A very brave observer who distinguished himself during the course of nine bombardments of the field of battle executed with admirable courage and sang-froid. Each time he brought back important information concerning the movements of the enemy. He was always ready and always volunteered for all missions.

Wounded severely 10/16/18
War Dept Citation for Gallantry in Action
In Bois des Rappes near Cunel, France, Oct. 15, 1918.
While leading his company in the attack he assumed command of elements of three other companies which had lost their officers and reorganized them under intense fire of enemy heavy artillery and led them in a successful assault upon the Bois des Rappes in the face of severe enemy machine-gun fire from his front and exposed right flank. Later, though both his flanks were exposed and he was practically surrounded by the enemy, he maintained his position against repeated attacks for 24 hours when he was severely wounded and evacuated to hospital.

Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 25, 1918.
After his platoon had fallen back under heavy shellfire, Corporal Schooley made a personal reconnaissance of an enemy machine-gun nest through a heavy barrage, killed one of the enemy gunners, and drove off the others with hand grenades, thereby enabling his platoon to resume its position.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Exermont, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
Captain Selby led his battalion in the attack through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire until killed by a machine-gun bullet. On one occasion he opened fire upon an enemy machine-gun nest with his pistol, thus drawing its fire while others made a successful flank attack.
1 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
No specific citation.
French Croix de Guerre (Palm)
Displayed great bravery and coolness at the head of a battalion which he brilliantly led to the attack on October 4, 1918. During the succeeding days he exerted himself to the utmost, encouraging his men by his imperturbable calm under enemy artillery and machine-gun fire. Was mortally wounded October 9, 1918.

9 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action

At a critical time when our forces were held up in crossing the Meuse, near Clery-le-Petit, November 5, 1918, the foregoing named officers and men, all of I Company, 60th Infantry, displayed extraordinary heroism in advancing over a lightly constructed pontoon bridge in the face of heavy enemy machine-gun and artillery fire. Lieutenant O.K. Morrison and 80 men succeeded in crossing the canal, East of the river, and at dawn advanced, in the face of terrific rifle and machine-gun fire, without awaiting orders, against a vastly superior force of the enemy then in position on Hill 260. The portion of the company under Captain E.C. Allworth swam the canal under heavy fire after the bridge had been destroyed, joined in the attack, advanced about a kilometer, killed many of the enemy and captured three (3) officers and one-hundred (100) men.

79 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
During the Meuse-Argonne offensive (Montfaucon), September 26th to September 30th, 1918, this officer led his platoon with great aggressiveness and ability, often personally reconnoitering well ahead in order to locate machine gun positions. He later took command of the company and although wounded, he refused to go back until the Division was relieved.

1 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
Operations between the Argonne and the Meuse.
Displayed distinguished bravery during the entire attack. He followed his battalion closely, being always where he was most needed. Has served with distinction during three battles.
1 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
An officer of distinguished ability and devotion to duty, for his gallant and efficient services in the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne Offensives. As battalion surgeon he attended the wounded under heavy shell and machine gun fire with utter disregard of his personal safety. He was killed in the last battle of the war while making his way forward to the advanced dressing station.

81 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
For courageous and meritorious service in action near Haudiomont on November 10, 1918. Under heavy artillery and machine gun fire, Cpl. Skinner fearlessly led a squad of automatic riflemen to the flank of an enemy machine gun nest, forcing its evacuation, thereby making possible the further advance of his company.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Sivry, France, Oct. 18, 1918. He volunteered and led an automatic-rifle crew forward, silencing a machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance of his company. He worked his way forward through a barrage from 4 machine-gun nests, killing all the occupants of 2 nests and forcing the others to withdraw, thus permitting his company to advance.

9 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action
On November 9th, 1918, the above named men all of Company M, 61st Infantry, advanced from Lion-devant-Dun without artillery support in face of heavy enemy machine-gun and artillery fire and captured Charmeis. They then proceeded towards Mouzay where they drove a battalion of the enemy from the town and captured it. This movement cleared the enemy from the east bank of the Meuse for many kilometers enabling the 5th Division to advance. This movement established a bridgehead for the 90th Division.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Verdun, France Oct. 13, 1918. During a heavy artillery barrage on the night of Oct. 13, two men having been killed next to him and one severely wounded, he, disregarding his personal safety, carried the wounded man through the barrage to the company headquarters; knocked down by a shell splinter and severely bruised, he continued with the wounded man to a first-aid station.
French Croix de Guerre (Bronze Star)
On the night of October 13, 1918, he displayed great courage and a high sense of duty. He transported a wounded comrade to the first-aid station and at the same time transmitted an important message to his battalion commander.

Wounded severely 10/15/18
Distinguished Service Cross
Near Verdun, France, Oct. 15, 1918. While carrying a message to the battalion commander in the Bois-de-Consenvoye, he was caught in an artillery barrage and severely wounded. Greatly exhausted, he refused medical attention and continued with the message until he reached battalion headquarters.

A soldier of admirable courage. In the front lines for 40 hours with 20 comrades whose supply had been cut off by the intensity of the bombardment, and seeing the morale wane as their physical strength decreased, he voluntarily went several times through the terrible enemy fire until he had supplied all of his comrades.

Wounded severely 4/30/18
French Croix de Guerre (Silver Star)
He distinguished himself particularly during the operations of the month of September by his courage and untiring devotion to duty. In the course of the night affairs during a violent barrage fire which damaged his ambulance and punctured three tires with shell splinters, he picked up with the greatest coolness all his wounded and transported them to the central dressing station where they were able to obtain very early care.
French Croix de Guerre (Bronze Star)
An ambulance driver of well-tried zeal and valor. During the recent combats he participated in the evacuation of the wounded regardless of fatigue, danger and the most violent bombardments.

79 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action

Sergt. Snook, on the night of September 29th, 1918, after his regiment was ordered to withdraw to a defensive position 1 km. in the rear from Madeleine Ferme, and while withdrawing discovered eight men of his company seriously wounded. He remained with them during the night, administering first-aid and doing what he could to relieve their suffering. Although the woods were under heavy artillery and machine gun fire he continued his care during the whole night. The next morning he returned to our lines, securing a detail and aid, and conducted them back to the Bois de Madeleine, and brought out the wounded men.

Distinguished Service Cross
At St. Etienne, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
Seeing a combat patrol suddenly fired upon by an enemy machine-gun nest and hard pressed, Lieutenant Spafford went to its relief, courageously leading an attack on the nest. Although wounded in the arm during the attack, he continued in the action of the attack until he received a second wound, which caused his death.
French Croix de Guerre (Palm)
During the night of October 8, being platoon commander, he went under a violent barrage fire to reconnoitre the position occupied by his company. Upon returning he led his platoon into position through a heavy bombardment without losing a man. In the afternoon of October 9, he led his platoon to the attack of a nest of machine guns and died as a result of wounds received during this attack.

Wounded slightly 6/13/18 and severely 7/18/18
Distinguished Service Cross
Near Vierzy, France, July 18, 1918. While commanding the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, which was held up in crossing a deep ravine by a heavy rifle and machine-gun fire, Captain Speer, with utter disregard for his own safety, although previously wounded while capturing an enemy battery, made a reconnaissance along the front line under heavy rifle, machine-gun, and shell-fire to the left flank, where he led his men to the attack, gained the ridge across the ravine, and made possible the advance of the entire line by enfilading the enemy's position. After gaining the assigned objective, he encouraged and reorganized his command, which had heavy losses, and made a personal reconnaissance under heavy fire in preparation for a further advance. While leading his battalion in the second attack he was severely wounded. Being unable to walk as a result of his wound, he ordered his men to push forward and remained alone as his men, inspired by his example, drove the enemy from their positions and continued to advance.

Wounded slightly 8/31/18
Distinguished Service Cross
Near Balschwiller, Alsace, Aug. 31, 1918.
Upon returning from a raid which he led against enemy trenches, Lieutenant Sprague found one of his men was missing. Accompanied by one man, he promptly and voluntarily returned through artillery, machine-gun, and rifle fire, found the missing man, who had been wounded, and carried him back to the American lines.
29 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
Aug. 30-31, 1918.
Displayed remarkable coolness, courage and good judgment in reconnaissance preliminary to a raid on the German trenches, and his display of fine qualities of leadership during the raid itself and his conduct in bringing back wounded under fire.

Wounded severely 10/5/18
Distinguished Service Cross
In spite of the fact that returning wounded men informed that it was impossible to take Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 21, 1918, he led his company forward with courage and determination under steady fire, and thereby gave invaluable aid in the assault in which he knew his command was the last reserve.
1 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
During the operations of the Division from July 18th to 23rd, 1918. Throughout the entire attack showed gallantry and conspicuous qualities of leadership. After the death of Major McCloud he organized and fought his battalion until relieved.
1 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
In the recent operations between the Argonne and the Meuse, Oct. 1918.
Led his company across an open field in the face of heavy machine gun fire from his front and flanks, and, after being severely wounded, continued to direct the operations of his company until ordered off the field by his battalion commander.
French Legion of Honor (Chevalier)
No specific citation.
French Croix de Guerre (Palm)
During the attack he showed the finest qualities as a leader and a fighter. He took command of the battalion on the death of its chief.

Distinguished Service Medal
He served with the 1st Division as Division Judge Advocate throughout the entire hostilities. At all times, by his high-minded sense of duty, his personal example of energy, loyalty, and courage, he was a powerful and consistent influence for promoting the morale, harmony, spirit, and the high standards of the 1st Division. His superior professional attainments and his loyal devotion to duty contributed materially to the success of his division and made him a conspicuous figure in a position of great responsibility.
French Croix de Guerre (Silver Star)
An energetic and courageous officer. He volunteered on different occasions to carry out important missions under violent bombardments, giving to all an example of a fine spirit of self-sacrifice.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Verdun, France, Oct. 10, 1918. In the Bois-de-Montagne, east of the Meuse, he voluntarily, and at the risk of his life, walked through an opening under direct machine-gun fire to administer first aid to the wounded in an advanced post. During the entire offensive his conduct was instrumental in maintaining the morale of the troops to which he was attached.

Italian Military Valor Medal (Silver) At Ermitier, France, July 2, 1918. When he saw an Italian soldier drawn down and capsized by the current of the river, he threw himself into the water, dressed, in order to save him. Overcome by the speed of the current, he was constrained fully four times to desist from his generous intent, but on the fourth attempt he dragged the body of the soldier to the bank, assisting him promptly. Wonderful example of courage, noble sentiment of comradeship and scorn of danger.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Verdun, France, Oct. 17, 1918. In the Bois-de-Consenvoye, east of the Meuse, he operated his automatic rifle on a post enfiladed by direct machine-gun fire during a desperate counterattack by the enemy until the rifle was damaged by the enemy's fire and he himself was wounded. He remained on post continuing to defend same with an ordinary rifle. He was later gassed, and refused to go to the hospital until ordered to do so by his company commander.
